DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claims 26-30, 109, 111, 112, 115 and 116 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brooks in view of Miller et al. and Martin et al. (5,988,348).

Brooks et al. disclose a plurality of drop safes (24). The drop safes include bill acceptors (44) and controllers (36), which are connected in a local area network by data interfaces (42B). While Brooks et al. teach essentially all the elements of the claimed invention, Brooks et al. fails to disclose a wireless network and updateable firmware. On the other hand, Miller et al. disclose a plurality of safes (40) that are connected by a wireless network (21) that allows updating of prices (col. 11, lines 22-25). Accordingly, it would have been obvious for one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to substitute the wireless network of Miller et al. for the network of Brooks et al. in light of the disclosure found in col. 7, lines 10-15 of Brooks et al. which states that the data interface (42B) can be any suitable communication link.

With respect to the firmware being updateable, Martin et al. is submitted for such a teaching. In particular, Martin et al. teach a coin acceptor including in one embodiment, microprocessor firmware can be downloaded from a remote location via the host computer (col. 26, lines 1-9) Accordingly, to employ an updateable firmware as taught by Martin et al. in the drop safe system of Brooks would have been obvious for one having ordinary skill at the time of the invention. The motivation for such a change would have been to provide a reliable, quick and cost effective method for updating program memory in an embedded system without the need for on site technical expertise.

Claims 110, 113 and 114 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brooks in view of Miller et al. and Martin et al. as applied to claim 26 above. Further, merely calling for the particular information in the data transmitted to the safes is only a recitation of intended use. A recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. In a claim drawn to a process of making, the intended use must result in a manipulative difference as compared to the prior art. See In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963).

Claims 119 and 120 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brooks in view of Miller et al. and Martin et al. as applied to claim 26 above, and further in view of Green et al.

Brooks et al., as modified by Miller et al. and Martin et al., disclose all the features of the applicant's claimed invention except the wide area network. On the other hand Green et al. disclose a computer 30 in Fig. 23 that is connected in a local area network with devices 34 and a wide area network 48 to other computers 44 and 46, see col. 9, lines 54-63. The devices 34 of Green et al. may include a deposit accepting machine, see col. 9, lines 1-3. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art in view of the showing and teaching of Green et al to also connect the network of Brooks to a wide area network.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 26-30, 109-116, 119 and 120 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

This is a RCE of applicant's earlier Application No. 09/960,595. All claims are drawn to the same invention claimed in the earlier application and could have been finally rejected on the grounds and art of record in the next Office action if they had been entered in the earlier application. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL even though it is a first action in this case. See MPEP § 706.07(b). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no, however, event will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
